Happy Thanksgiving from NVRA!

In ordinary life we hardly realize that we receive a great deal more than we give, and that it is only with gratitude that life becomes rich.

Sony Intros Products for Impaired

Products include eyewear to be used by deaf, hard of hearing

By Karen Idelson (Variety)

Sony's Entertainment Access Technology, the products include eyewear that can be used by deaf and hard of hearing consumers to view closed captioning data in up to six different languages .

Sony is introducing products to make it easier for hearing and visually impaired moviegoers to enjoy films at ShowEast2011.

Dubbed Entertainment Access Technology, the products include eyewear that can be used by deaf and hard of hearing consumers to view closed captioning data in up to six different languages. The glasses synch up with Sony's digital cinema projection systems using a wireless signal. Then extremely small projectors within the glasses display the closed captioning data for the person wearing the glasses, which are also adaptable for 3D.

The lightweight glasses, which have been tested with consumers in Seattle, also have an adjustable text height feature and have a receiver that makes it possible to use headphones for the hearing impaired or audio descriptive tracks for the visually impaired.

Sony's Entertainment Access Technology, the products include eyewear that can be used by persons who are deaf and hard of hearing to view closed captioning data in up to six different languages.

Sony plans to make these glasses available to exhibitors for purchase.

"The idea was to use some developments and innovation to find a way for people with hearing or vision challenges to enjoy movies more than was previously possible," said Gary Johns, SVP of Sony Electronics' digital cinema solutions group.

Court Reporter Bill Parsons invites NVRA members to view the voice writer version of The Court Reporter's Creed and the Court Reporter Patron Saint's Card at his website the Court Reporter's Museum.

To view voice writer version of The Court Reporter's Creed go to <http://www.courtreportersmuseum.info/images/creed.5.gif>. You can click the creed to enlarge it.

To view the court reporter patron saint's card go to <http://www.courtreportersmuseum.info/images/St.Cassian%20Card%201.jpg>

Bill prepared a special version of the patron saint's card especially for voice writers where there was a blessing of just the skills and not the hands, but that version is not available on the internet. The version on the internet was written for stenotype reporters with a blessing of the hands and skills.

If anyone wants a copy of the special voice writer version of the patron saint's card with a blessing of just the skills, they may contact Bill, and he will send them a copy of the card.

Also, if anyone wants a copy of the voice writer version of The Court Reporter's Creed suitable for framing, they may contact Bill, and he will send them a copy.

To contact Bill for the or hard copies of The Court Reporter's Creed suitable for framing or the copies of voice writer version of the patron saint's card, you may e-mail him at williamparsons2@yahoo.com.

Please include your mailing addresses in your requests for the creed and patron saint's card.

Also, a special voice writer version of a blessing for court reporters has been prepared.

Here's the special blessing for voice writers:

Blessing for Voice Writers

Bless the voices and the skills of those who record
with accuracy the facts
of the spoken word.

They assure that honor
and justice prevail, performing their duties
with a devotion
that never fails.

What greater mission on earth than to engage in a duty to record
the word of truth
on history's every page?

From the 2005 St. Cassian of Tangiers patron saint of court reporting saint's card prepared by Rev. Ed Nadolny, Sacred Heart Church, East Berlin, Connecticut.
